This program is aimed at encouraging companies to invest in the future by striving to increase employee salaries with the keyword "Enriching work in Okinawa." The Okinawa Prefecture supports companies in these efforts, socially recognizing those contributing to the overall income growth of the citizens. The system specifically evaluates companies surpassing the prefecture's standards in metrics such as "growth rate of total salary payments" and "average monthly salary," along with disclosing data on "regular employment ratio" and "gender employment ratio" to ensure transparent corporate operations.

At the certification ceremony held on the same day at the Ryukyu Shimpo Hall, our president and representative director, Kenneth Mark Exsterstein, received the certification from Vice Governor Yoshimi Teruya.

Moving forward, we will continue to pursue our corporate philosophy of "building a workplace environment where everyone can find fulfillment together" and strive for the income enhancement of our employees.
